"CARROTY NELL" JACK'S LATEST VICTIM.

Identification of the Body of the Murdered Girl in Whitechapel.

THE FIEND WAS NEARLY CAUGHT.

But Now the Police Are Without the Least Clew to Aid in Discovering Him.

O'BRIEN AND DILLON IN IRELAND.

There Was Not the Slightest Demonstration on Their Arrival at Kingstown.

[BY CABLE TO THE HERALD.]

London, Feb. 13, 1891.—Further particulars in regard to the woman who was found dead in the Whitechapel district this morning, and who is supposed to have been murdered by the fiend known as "Jack the Ripper," show that she is about twenty-five years of age and quite good looking for a woman of her class. She was found lying on her back, with her head nearly severed from her body. There was also a severe wound on the back of her head, caused, it is thought, by the severe fall she experienced when her assailant knocked her down.

The scene of this possibly latest of the series of "Jack the Ripper's" crimes is a dark, narrow archway known as Swallow's Gardens, and leading from Little Mint street to Chamber street. The archway referred to is during the busy hours a well frequented thoroughfare, especially used by railway employes and stablemen in passing to and from their residences in and about that packed neighborhood to their work on the numerous lines. of rallroads or in the many stables scattered about that section of the city.

At all times of the night there are people awake In the houses and pedestrians passing about and through Swallow's Gardens, but nobody seems to have heard any cries of an alarming nature durng the early hours this morning, when the crime was committed.

NOT MUTILATED. The murdered woman, judging from her appear ance, belonged to the abandoned class of females and was fairly well dressed. Though her hair was untidy her clothing had not been disarranged. The police theory is that the woman was murdered while in a standing position, that the crime was probably the work of "Jack the Ripper" and that the murderer was frightened away by the appreach of some pedestrian before he had time to mutilate the body in the manner already described in the previous crimes attributed to "Jack the

On the other hand it is known that the residents of Whitechapel in particular and of London in general are prone to give credit to "Jack the dipper" for any murder or attempt at murder in Wuitechapel where a woman is concerned.

The body, after the usual formalities, taken with the object of establishing the woman's identity and of finding a clew to the murderer, had been gone through with in the usual sterrotyped manner, was taken to the Whitechapel Mortuary. The blood was still warm when the body was found. When the blood stains had been cleared away the police carved a rough cross in the woodwork over tunate woman was found in order to mark the spot where the crime was perpetrated.

Large crowds of people naturally gathered around Swallow's Gardens this morning. In spite of the heavy efforts of scores of detectives and of the uniformed and plain clothes police of the division there seems to be, as in so many other and similar cases, no definite clew to the murderer. No arrests have been made.

A railroad employé, it is true, says he saw the murdered woman talking to a man, apparently a foreign seaman just previous to the time the murpolice are now engaged in searching all the vessels lying in the Thames or in the many docks about the port of London.

The policeman who found the murdered woman must have reached the spot while the murderer was only a few yards away, for the victim's lips were still twitching nervously and her eyes were still rolling when the officer bent over her, and a moment later sounded his whistle in a call for assistance, which must have placed any policeman in the neighborhood on the alert.

A woman's hat was found near the scene of the murder concealed by a piece of drapery. This bat was in addition to the one on the murdered woman's head, suggesting, according to the London police, that either the "Ripper" or the woman was disguised. The spot where the murdered woman's body was found was not a stone's throw from a police station. AN ARDEST MADE.

Upon being questioned by his superior officer the policeman who found the body said that in addition to the nervous twitching of the lips and the rolling of the eyes already referred to, the woman's limbs were moving when he found her. Consequently she must have been still alive when the policeman bent over her. The officer added that as soon as he discovered that a crime had been committed he rushed to the end of the archway and sounded an slarm with his whistle while the "Ripper" must have escaped through the neighboring streets. A large number of people who were immediately attracted to the scene of the murder by the police alarm assisted the scores of officers who soon appeared in searching the neighboring doorways, alleyways, dark nooks and corners where a man could conceal himself.

The wound across the murdered woman's throat was evidently caused by a sharp, powerful stroke, and nothing can shake the belief of the police that but for the approach of some pedestrian, possibly the policeman who found the body, it would have been mutilated in a manuer similar to that of the other Whitechapel victims.

The police have arrested a man on suspicion of being concerned in the murder of the unfortunate The woman has been identified as an unfortunate known as "Carroty Nell."

Whitechapel, as in the case of the other murders where unfortunate women were the victims of an unknown assassin, is thronged with police and crowded with people who have come from all parts of London to visit the scene of the latest murder mystery. The police searched all the cattle ships without any result, but later in the day they arrested a man whose clothes were ragged but who had a refined appearance. No trace of blood was found upon the man taken into custody, but he was held for examination on suspicion that he may have been the murderer of "Carroty Nell." Several persons have been found who claim to have seen the murdered woman a few minutes before the murder was committed

ANOTHER IDENTIFICATION. A woman has identified the remains of the victim as those of a woman named Frances, who was one of the many unfortunates that haunted the Whitechapel district. The witness says that she

HOUSE OF COMMONS. TIM HEALY'S BOTHERSOME QUESTIO'S TO ME.

BALFOUR. [BY CABLE TO THE HERALD.]

LONDON, Feb. 13, 1891.—In the House of Commons to-day Mr. Henry Matthews, Secretary of State for the Home Department, replying to questions as to the legality of the baccarat games played at Mr. Arthur Wilson's house, Tranby Croft, at the time of the Doncaster race meeting last autumn, and where the scandal which disgraced Sir William Gordon Cumming occurred, said that he had been informed that the playing referred to was not a contravention of the laws against gambling.

Mr. Timothy M. Healy, member for North Longford, renewed his question of Chief Secretary Balfour in regard to the Zetland-Balfour fund. Mr. Healy asked the Chief Secretary if the fund referred to was an effort of private benevolence, and why, if such was the case, it was administered by magistrates and police and poor law officials. Mr. Balfour replied that the Earl of Zetland and himself did not consider themselves precluded from using officials to distribute the fund. If others, he said, volunteered to assist in the work they would be employed.

"Can other benevolent agencies secure the same assistance?" asked Mr. Healy.

This question was greeted with cheers from the To this Mr. Balfour replied:—"If the honorable member for North Longford will confide any plan to me I shall be happy to consider it."

[BY CAELE TO THE HERALD.] LONDON, Feb. 13, 1891 .- A number of the M'Carthylte members of the House of Commons reassembled in committee room No. 15 at one o'clock this afternoon. Much less interest was manifested in the proceedings to-day than was evidenced vesterday. There were only fifteen members of the section of the Irish party led by Mr. M'Carthy present at the meeting. The deliberations were presided over by Mr. M'Carthy. After discussing the latest aspect of the situation of Irish affairs the meeting adjourned sine die. Messrs, Deasey, Arthur O'Connor, J. Kenney, Abraham, Condon and Fox were appointed a committee to promote the work of organization in

THE BREAKDOWN IN IRISH NEGOTIATIONS WILL HURBY HIM HOME.

SPOKANE FALLS, Wash., Feb. 13, 1891.-T. P. O'Con nor, who is here on a brief visit to some friends was saked for some expression regarding the reported fallure of negotiations between the Irish leaders. "I have learned of the breakdown of the negotiations and of the arrest of Mr. Dillon and Mr. O'Brien with profound discouragement. I had anticipated that these gentlemen, trusted and loved by all and remote from personal bitterness of conflict, would have succeeded in attaining a very different result. The breakdown is more lamentable if it has come, as Mr. O'Brien insists, from a mere contest of words and phrases. I don't hope to contribute anything toward repairing the situation, but I will make my return earlier than I anticipated. I expect to be in England in four weeks pated. I expect to be in England in four weeks from now."

Mr. O'Connor will speak in Spokane, Seattle, Ta-

SUFFOCATED IN THEIR BUNKS.

TWO SAILORS ON THE STEAMER CALLIOPE, AT NEWPORT, ENGLAND, LOSE THEIR LIVES. [BY CABLE TO THE HERALD.]

LONDON, Feb. 13, 1891 .- A fire broke out on the British steamer Calliope, lying at Newport, from Bilboa. An alarm was sent out, but the fire brigade was very slow in responding, and before the flames were extinguished the steamer was considerably damaged. Among those on the steamer were two of the crew who had been ashore earlier in the night carousing. They had sought their bunks while under the influence of the liquor they. had drunk, and when the alarm was given they paid no attention to it. When the fire was extin guished they were found dead in their bunks, hav ing been suffocated by the dense smoke.

FOREIGN LABOR NOTES.

The dock laborers' strike at Liverpool has collapsed, the men having yielded to the orders of their employers not to wear while at work the button which is the distinctive badge of their union. The seamen and firemen employed by the Donaldson line, of Glasgow, have resumed work, the Donaldsons having conceded the men's demands for higher wages. The vessels of this line will sail on the days intended for their departure previous to the outbreak of the strike.

COPYRIGHT, 1891, BY THE NEW YORK ASSOCIATED PRESS.

LONDON, Feb. 13, 1891 .- It is the general opinion that the balance of advantages resulting from the Boulogne negotiations remains with Mr. Parnell. Mr. M'Carthy and his colleagues are publicly satisfied with their position and assert that they will never attempt to renew the negotiations. Privately they are indignant at being checkmated by the tactics of the Parnellites. Their meeting today disclosed depression and apathy, only fifteen members of the section being present at the appointed time. These proceeded to appoint a con mittee to organize the party in Ireland to combat the Parnellites. The latter claim that there is no doubt that they are rapidly gaining strength in Ireland, which will result in the return of the bulk of the nationalists to allegiance to Mr. Parnell. The liberals and the M'Carthyites declare that Mr. Parnell will be beaten at the polls. News says: -- "With Mr. Parnell himself neither Mr. Gladstone nor Mr. M'Carthy has the smallest con cern. Mr. Parnell says the press has fallen into a grave mistake in treating the extracts from the M'Carthy-Sexton report, given to the press, as read at yesterday's meeting, as passages from Mr. Mortey's memorandum. Mr. Parnell wants Mr. M'Carthy to publish the text of the memorandum. If Mr. M Carthy refuses Mr. Parnell will probably seize the first chance to publish the matter. THE CANADIAN SITUATION.

The Canadian situation attracts much attention. The government manifests the greatest concern in the outcome of Sir John Macdonald's campaign. It is felt that Canada is about to decide a momentous question affecting all of the English colonies.

The press holds that the McKinley law is responsible for the situation. It is known that the government goes further back and recognizes the fact that active measures are necessary to revive the present drooping trade in Canada and England. While trade in other possessions is increasing that in the Dominion is diminishing. During the year 1850 there were only £12,000,000 worth of Canadian imports, against £29,000,000 worth from Australia, and £41,000,000 worth from the East Indies. From the United States England took £19,000,000 worth in the same year. As a means of weening Canada from any longings for reciprocity or absorption the government, after consulting a number of big financial houses, decided to back to an almost unlimited extent the projected mail routes to Japan and Australia via the Canadan Pacific Railway.

In connection with this route it is proposed to run a line between a port in the south of England and Halifax under a government subsidy, and also to proceed immediately to fortify Esquimati as a first class naval station. A number of members of the Canadian House of Commons are now here constitting with the Ministers on the subject. The marquis of Lorne, the Duke of Sutherland, the Earl of Aberdeen, Baron Brassey, Mr. Baden Powell and others are assisting the project. The new route, would be important in view of the fact that the new route would be important in view of the fact that the new route would be important in view of the fact that the new route would be important in view of the fact that the new route would be important in view of the fact that the new route would be important in view of the fact

LABOR AGITATION.

The labor situation in England is most unsettled. No sconer is the Scotch strike ended than the smouldering discontent of the dockers has broken out afresh in Cardiff and London. The ferment of the great dock strike has never wholly ceased. Troubles have been of weekly occurrence. The situation on Thursday assumed unexpected and important proportions which forced recognition of the strikers' arrangements. Both here and at Cardiff an arrangements.

the strikers' arrangements. Both here and at Cardiff an organized attempt is being made on the part of the new unions to obtain control of the shipping interests.

Over four thousand men are out in Cardiff alone. Should the strike extend to the Dockers' Union and the minor unions controlled by it, half a million men will be thrown out. A factor strengthening the men is the ill-concealed impatience with which many firms maintain connection with the shipping federation. Shipowners are obliged to pay thirty shillings weekly to board and lodge non-union men, and many are tired of paying three shillings and sixpence per ton for coaling when they could have the work done by union men for one shilling and sixpence per ton. sixpence per ton the family were Dr. H. Fruitus and Captain C. A. Menacho. The party is en route to London, the General having recently been appointed Consul General to England.

In the afternoon the party left the Victoria, where they will remain about two weeks, and, accompanied by Mr. Falcon, of the firm of W. R. Grace & Co., and the Peruvian Consul in New York, Juan Quiantana, made a short trip around the city. They expressed themselves as much pleased with what they saw. General (accress was especially impressed with the bay and harbor.

None of the party speak English and conversation with the General must be carried on in French or Spanish. In regard to the state of affairs in Chill he said he had been away so long and had heard so little news from the country that he was not in a position to give an opinion.

ABBESTED IN A SLEEPING CAR.

[BY TELEGRAPH TO THE HEBALD.] POUGHEREPSIE, N. Y., Feb. 13, 1891,-The elopement of Mrs. Annie Husted, the thirty-year-old wife of Farmer George Husted, of Clinton Corners, with the latter's hired man, Orlando Briggs, is the talk of the town. Briggs is ninotoon years old. Yesterday the husband came here and swore out a warrant charging the pair with grand larceny, claiming his wife had taken $300 of his money claiming his wife had taken $330 of his money with her. It was ascertained that they went to New York the day before and registered at the Hotel Vanderbilt. Yesterday morning early they bought tickets for San Francisco and had their baggage checked through. Patroiman Morgan, of this city, who traced them to Hoboken, telegraphed a full description of them to the Superintendent of Police at Buffalo. When the train rolled into the depot at Buffalo this morning Detective Lynch entered the sleeping car and arrested them. Mrs. Husted evinced considerable emotion. She said they were on their way to Oakhand, Cal., where her father resides. "I left my home," she said, "because my husband was unkind to me. I don't want to go back, and I will never live with him again. He never treated me as a husband ought to treats wife. The money is as much mine as it is his because I worked just as hard as he did for it." Orlando Briggs said:—"If don't blame her for leaving her home. We had been planning this for a year. I was going to try and get work at Oakland." They are expected here to-morrow.

CARRIE GERARD'S DEATH.

SUSPICIONS ABOUSED THAT IT WAS THE BESULT OF A CRIMINAL ACT.

[BY TELEGRAPH TO THE HERALD.] NEWBURG, N. Y., Feb. 13, 1891 .- An inquest was begun at Wappinger's Fails, N. Y., to-day in the case of Carrie Gerard, fifteen years old, who died here December 31. Dr. L. A. Harris attributed her death to pneumonia. The body was placed in a re-death to pneumonia. The body was placed in a recoiving vault, to be interred in the spring. Hints of suspicious circumstances led to an investigation.

The evidence goes to show that death may have been due to a criminal operation. Dr. Harris, when sworn, admitted that pneumonia was not the cause of death, but said he made out the certificate as he did in order to shield the young girl's reputation and save her family.
The father of the child is said to be a young Newburg man named Brown, who is still in his teens.
He will be called to testify to-morrow.

BY SIR EDWIN ARNOLD

Illustrated with portrait of Mr. Arnold and 14 full page reproductions from Hoffman's celebrated

In the poem Christ is presented as the Light of the World, as Mr. Arnold, in his previous poem, presented Budsha as the Light of Asia. To better fit him for his work the author made the Orient his home for many months, studying the philosophica, labits of thought and the religious temperament of the people in the East. Mr. Arnold regards this poem as his most elaborate and best work.
